TWO MINISTERS AT WAR.

Elder Sweeney and Rev. F. W.

Fraser Engaged

In a Bitter Personal Fight Growing Out of Old Charges.

Columbus, Ind., September 21.—Trouble has broken out afresh between Rev. S. Sweeney, ex-Congress General at Constantinople and pastor of the Tabernacle Christian church, and Rev. F. W. Fraser, pastor of a Presbyterian church in this city. It was renewed by a long letter sent by Mr. Sweeney to the meeting of the White Lick Presbytery a few days ago, making complaint against Mr. Fraser because the latter had refused to substantiate or withdraw certain undefined charges made against the ex-Congress General over a year ago. In his letter, Mr. Sweeney said:

"I have called upon Mr. Fraser on more than one occasion to meet me in a fraternal investigation of his charge, only to be met by a haughty denial and insulting insinuations. I have repeatedly demanded that he join me in a mutually chosen tribunal and submit his charge and sustain it, or else withdraw it. I have offered, if he will do so, to prove his witness to be a liar; that he knew his witness was a liar when he used him, and also to prove Mr. Fraser a liar as well. I have offered to show that his witness' statement, on which he solely relies, bears a lie on its face. I have offered to pay his witness' fare from Virginia and return if he will bring him back and have him swear to the truth of his statement in open court. I have offered to proceed against his witness for perjury the moment he does the above. I have offered to proceed against Mr. Fraser for perjury the moment he will swear in open court to what he has published in the newspapers and written to me. In all the above he refuses to meet me, and has warned me that I am in danger of personal injury from him unless I take care. If Mr. Fraser were the man he should be he will at once demand a trial and exonerate himself from the above charges, but, mark my words, he will not do so. If he denies any of the above allegations I am ready to prove them, and will only ask to submit the correspondence between us with some corroborating affidavits as the sole and sufficient proof of all the material allegations of this letter."

The letter was returned without action by the Presbytery, because Mr. Sweeney is not a member of that church. In a letter published here to-day, Mr. Fraser comes back at Mr. Sweeney, and criticizes the manner in which he attempted to place the matter before the Presbytery. In response to this, Mr. Sweeney has written another letter for publication, attacking Mr. Fraser and repeating several statements made by the latter, which he claims, are all falsehoods. In his second letter, Mr. Sweeney said:

"The whole matter so far as the newspapers are concerned, has been a purely personal attack upon my good name and character, which I have been building up in this city for twenty-three years. I now give the public notice that I shall stand upon the defense no longer. I have my Kentucky up, and one of us must go to the wall. Time will tell who it is."

He then answers some of the falsehoods, which he numbers by letters from A to E, inclusive, and continues:

"If the gentleman desires me to go to the 2 of his duplicity and devilry, let him press the button and I will do the rest. I am well loaded. In conclusion I wish to emphasize to the public that there is no connection between the churches and this. God forbid that any should confound this dirty fight with religion. I am ashamed of it. It is no 'preacher fight.' It is a dirty attack on my character, and I propose to uphold that for which I have labored nearly twenty-five years to build up. A man that will not fight for his good name does not deserve one. Let it now be a fight to the finish, and then let the public have no more of the dirty stuff."

The revival of the trouble between these prominent ministers is regretted by all citizens here. Mr. Fraser is believed to be a man of high character and of Congressman Cooper, the wedding to take place early in October, and Mr. Cooper and family, including the affianced, are leading members of Elder Sweeney's church, and boom family friends. Trouble is feared yet, Elder Sweeney is a brother of Elder John Sweeney, of Paris, Ky., and has seven brothers, all Christian preachers and his father before him a Christian preacher.

DESHA BRECKINRIDGE Draws His Big Knife and Goes Out For Gore.

Desha Breckinridge became involved in a difficulty with J. D. Livingston, the financial agent of J. Kennedy Todd, owner of the Kentucky Union Railway, at the Phoenix Hotel in Lexington, on Friday evening. Livingston, at whose side Breckinridge was standing, proposed that they shake hands and be friends as the campaign was over. This advance was repulsed in vile language by Breckinridge, which was kept up until he finally caught hold of it, cutting his hand quite severely. By-standers rushed forward and prevented further bloodshed. One Lane, said to be from Mt. Sterling, was with Breckinridge and made himself quite officious in declaring he would have a hand in helping Breckinridge. Later Breckinridge and Lane were walking along the street and met Judge G. B. Kincaid, when they both abused him in round terms, applying many vile epithets to him. Kincaid said he was not armed and did not, at any time, desire a street fight. Breckinridge told Kincaid to go and arm himself that he would meet him anywhere. Young Breckinridge is undertaking rather a large contract if he expects to insult and abuse every man who worked against his father in the Ashland District. The fresh young man needs a right good sound spanking, and if he does not soon subside he will get something worse.

The main church of the great monastery of San Francisco, in Mexico, which since 1869 had been in Protestant hands, is to be restored to Catholic worship. The foreclosing of a mortgage which could not be paid off brought into the hands of a wealthy Catholic gentleman the building in which services were attended for three centuries by Spanish viceroys and in which the first Te Deum of Mexican independence was celebrated.

The Republicans of the counties composing the Ashland District, held a Convention Wednesday, and the result is that Judge George Denny, of Lexington, will be their nominee at the convention to be held at Lexington to-morrow. Five masked men, farmers living not far from Gorin, Mo., attempted to hold up a Santa Fe railroad train on Tuesday night. The railroad people were apprised of the raid and had made preparation to give the desperadoes a warm reception when they should show up. The scoundrels placed a torpedo on the track and further down the road swung a lantern to notify the train men to hold up. One of the robbers ordered the engineer to throw up his hands, and his order not being complied with promptly enough to suit him, the robber fired on the railroad man, severely wounding him. This was a signal for the detectives and officers hid in the train to open fire on the desperadoes. Two were severely wounded and captured, the others escaped followed by the Sheriff and posse.

The tornado which swept over Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota Friday night carried death in its path. In all seventy-three are reported as dead and ninety-six received fatal or serious injuries. The greatest damage was done in Kosuth county, Iowa, where twenty-six were killed and thirty injured. The town of Cyclone was almost demolished, and Whitmore badly wrecked. The Fair Grounds near Emmetsburg were swept clean. As unity the damage was heavy. The business portion of Leroy, Minn., was destroyed. At Spring Valley, Minn., three were killed and seventeen injured. Near and around Mason City, Iowa, twenty-seven were killed, four were fatally injured and over fifty others seriously hurt.

W. C. OWENS

Declared the Nominee in the Ashland District.

The Official Count Gives Owens 255 Plurality.

The Democratic Committee for the Seventh Congressional District met at Frankfort Saturday and declared Hon. W. C. Owens the nominee of the party for Congress. The official count showed that Owens had 255 plurality in the District. Col. Breckinridge presented to the Committee a statement in which he claimed that he still believed himself the real nominee of the party, but since a contest or an independent race on his part would only mean the election of a Republican, he would, for the sake of party harmony, decline and withdraw any claims he might have.

The vote stood: Owens, 8,074; Breckinridge, 7,819; Settle, 3,406; Owens' plurality, 255.

P. P. Johnson, a member of the Committee from Fayette, introduced the following resolution, which was adopted without any contest:

"Whereas, This Committee did at its last meeting provide that a man should be a legal voter, a Democrat and intend in good faith to support the nominee of the party to be entitled to participate in the Democratic primary.

"Whereas, Certain persons invoked the power of a court, and had the provisions of the election law which gave effect to these laudable and time-honored principles suspended in one county of the District, and relaxed in others to the extent that the election was not held under the law and under the regulations; therefore, be it further

"Resolved, That W. C. Owens, on the face of the returns, having received a plurality of 255 votes, we declare him the Democratic candidate for Congress in the District, and urge all good Democrats to give him a hearty support."

The Committee then adjourned. Mr. Owens was notified of the action of the Committee and declined to accept the nomination with any such slur at his friend, Judge Cantrill, attached to it and so notified the members of the Committee. Soon another meeting was held, the above resolution withdrawn and the following one passed in its stead:

"Resolved, That Hon. W. C. Owens, having received a plurality of 255 votes cast at the primary election held on September 15, 1894, be, and he is hereby, declared the Democratic candidate for Congress in this the Seventh District, and we urge all good Democrats to give him a hearty support; all of which shall be certified to the officers required by law."

The Committee then adjourned, for the second time the same afternoon.

We call attention to the advertisement of sale of fine horses by Mr. Eldrid Bean, of Winchester, which will be found in another column. This sale takes place October 4, and Mr. Bean has some good ones to offer. "Algeria Bells" that took a record of 2:24 at Lexington last week, was bred by Mr. Bean. He writes us that he has five in this sale that are better than she is.

A protracted meeting is to be held at old Springfield, beginning at night on Thursday, October 4th. Rev. Mr. Keller, the pastor, will probably be assisted by Rev. E. O. Guerrant in the conduct of the meeting.

Suddeth Slapped.

On last Sunday evening, Mr. R. A. Mitchell, attorney of this city was returning home from Fulton in a sleeper on the C. & O. In the same car was W. A. Suddeth, of the law firm of Stone & Suddeth, of Louisville. Mr. Suddeth is one of the lawyers for the Columbia Finance and Trust Company, Trustee of the New Farmers Bank, and, Mr. Mitchell was closely identified with the management of this bank before its collapse. No good feeling has existed between the two for some time, they did not speak. When the train arrived at the depot here, on account of Suddeth's actions toward Mr. Mitchell, he became infuriated and slapped Suddeth on the jaw. There would have been more of it, probably, had not the conductor caught Mitchell and prevented further slapping.

The Japanese army in Corea is reported to have been re-enforced by 10,000 soldiers, with 2,000 pack horses and a complete equipment of pontoon bridges and batteries of mounted gun.

Judge Barrow, of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court, has refused to grant an injunction against the Sugar Trust, though it has not complied with the law by making an official return of the business transacted during the past year.

There is reported to be much dissatisfaction among the Democrats of the Second Tennessee Congressional district, because the Democratic Executive Committee has refused to nominate a candidate. This is the district in which the fierce factional fight between Congressman Houk and Col. Gibson is in progress.

The fresh young man who edits the Gazette nearly works himself into a frenzy because the Advocate took occasion to call attention to Ed O'Rear's very severe attack of "hangriness for office." Ed surely has it and has it bad, as we noted a week ago; but keep cool, young man, he will be effectually cured early in November.

The Democratic campaign was begun all along the line in Indiana Sunday with mass-meetings and speeches. The most important meeting was at Terre Haute, where Senator Voorhees addressed his fellow-citizens in his forcible style. He defended the work of the Democrats in Congress, and spoke at length upon the tariff question. He admitted that the new law is not all that was desired, but declared it has broken the backbone of the protection system in this country. The income tax was defended, and the repeal of the sugar-bounty law and the Federal election laws were pointed out as acts for which the Democrats in Congress deserve much credit. At Warsaw Gov. Matthews delivered an able speech, the greater part of which was devoted to State issues.

Benny's Bad Break.

Judge Apperson, probably thinking Mr. White had not sufficiently covered the ground, arose in his might and with all the voice he could command told the people in a thundering tone that the county was all right, n-funds had been misappropriated, but before he had finished Mr. Orear complied him to state that the county affairs were not all right.—Mt. Sterling Gazette, Sept. 19.

If we were to comment on this remarkable misstatement of fact as the editor of the Gazette has shown he would, were we the authors of so base a slander against a Republican official, we would say the man who penned the above article knew he was lying when he wrote it. We prefer to content ourselves by only remarking that we have reason to believe Mr. Hall will find it convenient to correct the misstatement in his next issue.

What Mr. Orear asserted, and what Judge Apperson did not deny, was that "You (Judge A.) would not deny that there was something wrong in county affairs before you went into office eight years ago." Mr. Orear specially, plainly and unequivocally stated when he arose to make his reply that he did not believe there was anything wrong in the management of county affairs during the past eight years. If there is anything bad of Judge Apperson's terms that is unsettled and unaccounted for, then Mr. Orear, and not the present County Court, is responsible for it. For seven years ago his matter was placed in Mr. Orear's hands as the paid attorney for the county, and if he has not done his duty in pushing the county's rights to a successful issue, he is to blame for neglecting his client's interest and disregarding his sworn duty as attorney to that client. Surely it requires a great amount of cheek for any man who, as the paid attorney for the county, has in seven years been unbecomingly untruthful and a successful conclusion frauds that he claims existed, and which were fresh when the county's interests were committed to his keeping, to come before the people and tell them that he will be any the more faithful if larger and more diverse interests are given into his hands.

Nobody is Minding You, Benny

How the young man, who has lately been elevated to the position of editor of the Gazette, did yawn and howl in his last issue. He must needs do something to attract attention to himself, since the only notoriety he has hitherto been able to secure, is to be found in the speech he is credited with making to the negroes in which he revilingly and degradingly expressed himself along the line of the social equality of the negro and the white races. The young man will learn before this campaign is over, if it is possible for him to learn anything, that neither the editor of the Gazette, nor the editors of the Advocate are candidates before the people, and that his very poor effort to force himself upon the notice of the community will not be further aided by us. His very transparent trick to engage us in a personal controversy, and, if possible, draw off attention from the inefficiency and the false claims of the candidates presented by the Republicans for office in the county, is thrown away. We decline to accommodate him. If the little we found it necessary to say about his candidates, so raised his ire, it is not at all improbable that the young man may feel sore enough to slop over some more as the days are going by.

Frank Hurd, probably the most pronounced Free Trader of the Free Trade wing of the Democratic party in a speech before the Ohio Democratic Convention on Wednesday made this prophecy:

"Free wool is worth more to tariff reform than all other provisions of the law put together. I predict higher prices for domestic wool to the farmer and cheaper goods to the consumer. In this way free wool is destined to be the great educator of the people on the tariff question. It is one of the most important statutes enacted since the war."

The wool growers, of Ohio, and the whole country let their party affiliations be what they may, will be glad to see in Mr. Hurd's prophecy an early fulfillment.

The county ticket is made up. The Democrats have a clean ticket; they never had a better one, and it is deserving the support of every man who wants faithful and efficient officers. The Republicans have their ticket, and beginning at the tail end, the people do not want a man for Constable who is sitting around waiting for a job. A man to fill this place acceptably must be live, active, without a lazy bone in his hide. Such a man is M. C. Clay, the Democratic nominee. Then there is G. L. Kirkpatrick, Republican nominee for County Clerk. To elect him would be to make a poor Clerk out of a good tobacco dealer—a good dealer for himself, for we understand he has made this year off of the tobacco raisers $15,000, and it goes out this early that he intends to win his race or sink one-half of his property. Surely a man posing as he does would not undertake to use a corruption fund. There are not enough Republicans to elect him and Democrats will stick to their principles and are not for sale. E. C. O'Rear would like to be County Judge, and modestly asks this honor, but no Republican need apply for this office so long as the Democrats offer as suitable a man as Mr. A. B. White. Then if white people did prefer another man (which they don't), they would not want a County Judge who would give to contractors who failed to comply with specifications more than the agreement. The people haven't any money to throw at birds.

The friends of those Republican who wanted to make the race for the several county offices, and who were so summarily set down upon by the friends of Orear, Kirkpatrick and McMahan, are not taking things very quietly. They recognize the snub and may yet take steps to see that a full ticket is in the field. This is their fight. The Democrats would soon fight them all along the line as at one or two points. The only advantage to us is to be found in the strong and widespread disaffection in the ranks of the Republicans, because of this crowding off the track others who wanted to run. But let them come singly in trios or all in a bunch, all alike, they will go down in November.

The Republican nominees for county offices can certainly lay no sort of claim to a superiority over either of their Democratic opponents. In what, pray, is Mr. O'Rear superior to Mr. White? Not in honesty and personal integrity! If there is a personally and officially cleaner man in this section than A. B. White, we do not know him. Kirkpatrick is a fine judge of tobacco no doubt, but who will say he is better equipped for the duties of the office of County Judge than Lucien Green? You have known Lucien Green from his boyhood. His whole life is open to you. He has had a wide and honorable business career in our midst. He has been clean, honest and open in all his dealings. Has Mr. Kirkpatrick been more? Can he promise more faithful service than we know Mr. Greene will give us? Matt Clay has filled the office of Constable to the satisfaction of all who have entrusted business in his hands. Will Wallace McMahan do more?

The news from all the mountain counties of our district is to the effect that the Democratic candidates for Congress, Kendall and Beckner, will each carry the full Democratic strength. There is no enthusiasm among the Republicans and the Democrats are making the more aggressive campaign. Every indication points to an increased rather than a decreased majority for the standard-bearers in the old Tenth.

Owens has been declared the nominee of the party in the Seventh District. Colonel Beckridge had been a last year, now let us have a rest.

Tobe Mitchell Given Two Years.

The case of the Commonwealth in Fulton county against A. T. Mitchell, charged with false swearing, the case was tried last week and the jury found a verdict against him and fixed his punishment in the penitentiary for a term of two years. He at once applied for a new trial which was granted. This is evidence that the Court did not believe the verdict a just one. For the enlightenment of our readers we state the case as given to us by one conversant with the facts:

Mr. Mitchell was cashier of the Fulton Bank, and testified as to the standing of one of his depositors' accounts with the bank. His credits were properly given, and concerning this no question was made. Also the debits were correctly made and were not questioned, but in making his statement under oath the amount was given different from what the books showed, caused by a numerical error in subtraction and because of this Mr. Mitchell was charged for false swearing. This is the third time he has been granted a new trial.

Judge Isaac M. Vansard died at his home on Queen street, in this city, on Saturday evening, July 29. He was 52 years of age, and in all the years of his life he had borne among his fellowmen the reputation of an honest man. He leaves a wife (nee Emma C. Shubert) to whom he was married in 1878, and three sons to mourn his loss.

Born and raised in Bath county, he moved to Menefee county, where he served two terms as County Judge and one term as County and Circuit Clerk. He discharged his public duties with credit and fidelity. Fourteen years ago he was stricken with paralysis, and since that time, although almost continuously chained to his chair, he bravely and manfully kept up his struggle to win for his family the necessities of life. His was the brave and manly struggle of a manly man against most adverse fate. His life is a shining example of the strength of manly courage, that against such overwhelming odds, has built up from its utter desolation, the fair Southland, till now it blossoms as the rose. His life, too, puts to the blush those who are inclined to murmur at the small ills that have fallen to them. His manly life is well worth a study at the hands of all of us. And the example it gives to the world well worthy of imitation.

For some weeks past, he had been confined to his bed, but was slightly improved. On Saturday evening he was sitting in his chair and had eaten his supper. His devoted wife retired to the dining room to join the rest of the family in the evening meal, but was scarcely seated till she heard a noise in his room. They ran to him, but found, that in the dim light, he had reached for a bottle of medicine he was accustomed to take after eating, and had unwittingly swallowed Colicoid Acid instead. He only lived some twenty minutes.

His funeral was preached at the at the Christian church yesterday afternoon, and he was afterwards buried by the members of the Confederate Veterans Association in Maple Cemetery, he having served with credit in the Ninth Kentucky Confederate Cavalry.

On Monday evening, September 17, 1894, Mrs. Mason Kincaid, who lived near Ewing Station, died of consumption. Although not a great sufferer, she was for many months an invalid. With patience and a Christian's trust she bore the affliction until she fell asleep. Free from the pains, frailties and sins of earth life, she has departed to be with Christ, which is far better, where all is joy and peace. She was a member of the Corinth Church of Christ, having been baptized on September 17, 1893, by Eld. B. W. Trimble, who conducted the funeral services on Wednesday, September 19th, at the family residence. Her husband and a daughter survive her.

Reaser teacher, certificate first-class; seemed to take a very great interest in his pupils, and had delightful recitations, especially Emily Turner, who is reviewing her studies the last time preparatory to taking a higher course or entering the arena of school teaching, which is so popular with the ladies; number of pupil children in district, 51; draws from State, $140.25; highest number at school, 31; lowest number at school, 19; number enrolled, 31; present, 19; trustees visit school once per week; school house too small; have maps and charts, but no desks, would recommend that trustees furnish house with better seats.

Corinth School, District No. 9—Miss Fannie H. Jones teacher, certificate first-class; school in splendid condition; trustees seem to be alive to their interests and know what it takes to make a good school and never stop until they furnish everything necessary; have a good house, good desks, good blackboard, also have maps, charts and globe; there is a lack of water, fencing, etc., which is being supplied now; number of pupils in district, 79; district draws from State, $227.25; highest number of children at school, 36; lowest number, 22; number enrolled, 39; present, 30; various reasons for not having better attendance at school, but think when crops are gathered in will have a better attendance; order good; recitations good; school well graded; trustees visit school seldom.

Anderson School, District No. 27—Miss Jennie Graves teacher, certificate first-class; number of pupils in district, 75; highest number at school, 41; lowest number at school, 21; number enrolled, 42; present, 32; district draws from State, $206.25; a very great improvement could be made by trustees in regard to visiting school, and it is so much to be regretted that trustees will not take more interest in the education of their children; house in bad condition; have charts, but no desks; order in school good; recitations good; school very well graded.

Duff School, District No. 7—Miss Elizabeth Peed teacher, certificate first-class; school in splendid condition, patrons well pleased and giving good attendance, but school house entirely too small, should be made larger or a new one instead; trustees have furnished the house with new desks, but have no maps, charts or globe; number of pupils in district, 75; highest number at school, 53; lowest number at school, 17; number enrolled, 60; present, 47; trustees visit school very regularly, and seem to be alive to the interest of the school except the things above enumerated; school graded; district well; recite very nicely; district draws from State $206.25.

An Illustration.

The property known as the Mississippi Mill site, and belonging to a company of which Wm. Mitchell and R. A. Mitchell are stockholders, and which had been levied on by the Columbia Finance and Trust Company, Trustees of the New Farmers Bank, was advertised to be sold for cash and brought $15,000 gross. This property contained 1,300 acres of the finest timber and plantation land of the South. One of the attorneys for the Trust Company, gave as his opinion that by economical management and the marketing of these timber in a period of a few years, it would have paid more than $85,000 in original cost, but the following is the way it was valued and the manner disposed of.

The land with the timber	$ 54,000
is worth $20 per acre	3,000
Tug boat, etc.	4,000
Mills, etc.	36,000
Notes and Accounts	10,000
Logs in the boom	1,000
Total	$117,000

This, if the timber on the land would pay its original cost, was a conservative estimate would leave a balance of $117,000 profit—understand us that this would have been the realization, had the property been properly operated and managed; but as it is the Trust Company has forced it on the market at a cash sale and realized only $15,000 gross, which less costs, will be reduced to $10,000. A loss to the stockholders of the New Farmers Bank of $177,000. With this kind of management it is now being estimated that the depositors of this institution will receive less than 50 per cent, and even that will be a long time coming.

The reviews of the commercial and financial situation of the country by the Dun and Bradstreet mercantile agencies contain much to encourage the past week. The favorable features reported last Saturday have been maintained, and surprisingly good reports have been received from the South generally and from many points West.

Rev. C. J. Nugent, the minister at the Methodist church who takes the place left vacant by Rev. A.
Redd, preached the first sermon of his pastorate here Sunday. Mr.
Nugent is not totally a stranger to our people, having had charge of the Grassy Lick church in this county some years ago.

Rev. Alex. Redd, for two years past in charge of the Methodist church at this place, is stationed at Richmond. Brother Redd is one of the best and purest men that ever lived in our city. He is a man of marked ability and as true and upright a Christian gentleman as lives. We sincerely hope he may find the pleasant field of labor that he deserves, in his new place of abode.

Fire Sayings.

Fire is one of the best servants, but worst of masters.

Better prevent fires than put them out.

Matches lying around loose may cause a fire. Keep them in metal boxes only.

Smoke kills more than fire, and is lighter at the floor than higher. If perused in a room with it, get on hands and knees and search for an opening.

Salt water kept in pails where it is easy to get is one of the best extinguishers. If used in time.

Life is first to be saved, then property.

Never keep gasoline, naphtha or benzine about premises without written permission from the Insurance Company.

Insure with A. HOFFMAN. He has the largest and best companies, and his rates are as low as the lowest.

"Gospel" is the name of a new publication devoted to society, art, literature and drama, edited by our extensive man, Hanly C. Ragan, at Kansas City, Mo. Its articles are the embodiment of a bright, cultured and vigorous brain and will doubtless be sought after like Paul and Judge though its style is widely at variance.
It is printed in pamphlet form on high grade of half-tone paper, typog-raphically a beauty and already is enjoying a paying patronage from advertisers. There is a field for this character of journalism in the West and with pluck, enterprise, taste, judgment and ability and untiring contributions, Gospel will prove itself a success. We wish "Gospel" unbounded success and high position in the literary world.

A Trying Situation.

The day was in that transitory state when twilight lingers in the lap of day and darkness struggles for the ascendancy. The sun hung in a great red ball or lurid flame betwixt the heaven and earth; there was a feeling of profound quiet which seemed to settle on all things animate and inanimate.
The birds, the insects, the very trees and sprouting plants were for the moment flushed as if in expectation of some unforeseen, some inexplicable something which seemed to pervade the very atmosphere.
A bull gurgled softly as he fell back into the limpid water.
Suddenly over the brow of a distant hill there appeared a beautiful girl—a modern Diana. Seated upon a large gray horse, turned her large brown eyes to the four points of the compass, heaving a sigh, she murmured, "Nine o'clock, and Bud Michaels not here yet, but I will not despair." The lamp of hope is not easily extinguished in hearts that truly love, besides Bud Renno has asked me to go and see Sadie Hasson in "A Kentucky Girl," when she plays in Mt. Sterling on October 5th.

The protracted meeting now in progress at the Baptist church is eliciting great interest. Crowded houses at every evening service to hear Rev. J. H. Dew, of Louisville, who is assisting Pastor Gill. He is a preacher of power and great earnestness, and the gospel is presented with such simplicity that no one need fail to understand the value of life. His sermon at the Court-house Sunday afternoon to men and boys over fourteen years of age is highly complimented, and will doubtless result in great good.
Ten persons have been added to the church. Meetings will continue during the week. Preaching every afternoon at 3:15 o'clock and evening at 7:15. Everybody and especially the unconverted are invited to attend.

Mrs. Richard Garrett (see Anna Laura Howe) and little babe visited the family of her brother, C. W. Howe, from Saturday until Monday, when she left for Covington to join her husband, who is preaching at the First Baptist church at Covington last Sunday Rev. Garrett is one of our very best Baptist preachers, and the Covington church would not make a mistake to secure his services.

Mrs. Joseph Lindsay has sold her hogshed factory located on the C. & O. railroad to Messrs. McCormick & Burton, lumber dealers, and as soon in connection with their planing mill.

Messrs. McCormick & Burton propose to make this one of the largest factories in Kentucky.

J. L. Conroy and W. B. O'Connell are delegates to the Grand Council of the Y. M. I., which is in session at Louisville this week.

Agnes, are visitors to the same meeting.

residence on the corner of Clay and Sycamore streets, now occupied by J. W. Groves, and will it.

short time.

AMUSEMENTS.

A Liberty Bell.

The "Liberty Bell Co." is a first-class attraction—a nice, clean show.
At Opera House Wednesday night, September 26.

Richard's and Pringle's Georgia Minstrels.

Richard's and Pringle's Georgia Minstrels closed the theatrical season for the summer last evening with an old-fashioned minstrel entertainment.
Enthusiastic auditors showed their appreciation by recalling everything, and tried vainly to make Billy Ker-sands give the entire show. For a quarter of a century Mr. Kersands has been the best gaudy negro minstrel on the stage, and he was in good form last night. The Crescent Quartet, with the remarkable bass of A. Walker, sang well, and the reminder of the program was very fine.

ning, September 28, 1894.

Montgomery County Teacher's

The following teachers were present:

Maudie Donohue, Eliza Maxey, Josie Lanth, Loula Wamsley, — Stevens; Mesdames C. H. Duty and M. S.
Tyler and Major Fowler.

Called to order at 10 a. m. by Superintendent Horton, who, in a few words, laid before the meeting the object of the Association.

Miss Matie Donohue read a paper,
"Why Teach?"

Primary Geography was then informally, but ably discussed by Miss Stevens of Harris Institute.

Much regret expressed that Miss Correll was unable to be present.

The small attendance was due to the fact that there was a misunderstanding concerning date of meeting.

weak, nervous and irritable through overwork. I suffered from brain fatigue, mental depression, etc. I became so weak and nervous that I could not sleep. I would arise tired, discouraged and blue. I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine

and now everything is changed. I sleep soundly, I feel bright, active

A Narrow Escape

From Loss of a Limb Dreadful Case of White Swelling—A Perfect Cure.

One of the most difficult forms of scrofula and one of the most difficult to cure is that of white swelling. Hood's Sarsaparilla has accomplished many wonderful cures of white swelling, one of which is related below by Mr. B. E.
Thomas, a manufacturer of harnesses, saddles, etc., at Evansville, W. Va. Read his letter:
"I had a white swelling on my leg for many years. I had to have it cut out, and the flesh on my limb cut out and the bone exposed. After the flesh healed up I was not troubled again until January, 1894. I was told to return within fifteen days. I was afflicted with white swelling, worse than before, and I was in particular danger of losing my limb. I had to have it cut out again. The whole front of my leg from knee to ankle was so swollen that I could not walk."

A Mass of Corruption.
I could get but little ease and comfort and less benefit from the medical treatment I received.
Some of my friends advised me to have the leg amputated, but I hesitated, not wanting to lose a limb. I purchased a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and began to take it. I had not taken it more than a few days when I noticed a paper embracing a testimonial for Hood's Sarsaparilla from one Mr. John McMurtry, telling me of his cure of white swelling. I had heard of it before, but I had not taken it before. I had heard of it before, but I had not taken it before. I had heard of it before, but I had not taken it before. I had heard of it before, but I had not taken it before.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures
What Hood's Sarsaparilla had done for him, it did for me. I had not taken it more than a few days when I noticed a paper embracing a testimonial for Hood's Sarsaparilla from one Mr. John McMurtry, telling me of his cure of white swelling. I had heard of it before, but I had not taken it before. I had heard of it before, but I had not taken it before. I had heard of it before, but I had not taken it before. I had heard of it before, but I had not taken it before.

My Limb is Perfectly Sound.
This also benefited my general health and I am now able to work as my trade. Hood's Sarsaparilla receives all the praise and I cannot recommend enough for the good it has done me. B. E. THOMAS, EVANSVILLE, W. VA.

The Last Excursion of the Season to the Sea Shore.

The best time of the year for visiting the sea shore is in September—better climate, better fishing, better bathing.

over the picturesque C. & O. to Old Point Comfort and Fortress Monroe, Va., will leave Cincinnati September 12, at 7 p. m., reaching Old Point Comfort at 6:00 p. m. next day.

Good to return within fifteen days.

A REMONSTRANCE.

There are thoughts that the mind cannot follow.
The mind of the animal made.
But woman abundantly has.
And mostly her notions prevail.
Why, when I desire to do as I please,
I find a thing that I want to do,
And if any asks for a true reason He is at a loss.

Ah, why I each "passing depression" Of stories that gloriously were Received as the grubbiest of grubs, Of almost unpassable love?
In the dreamy, the glibly, the firm, Say, why do our women delude,
And therefore so constantly play me With "ships in the night?"

Dear ladies, in vain you approach us With Harlequins, Hobbes and Grands.
For, alas! though you offer to teach us, Let the soul of no man understand Why the grubbiest of grubs, the most Why the naughtiest of the naughtiest, While you keep to a regular quarrel With a gay little vice.

Yes, a vice with her lips full of laughter,
A vice with a rose in her hair,
You condemn in the present and offer To darkness of after despair.
But a sin, if it ravages redness it,
To a passion that's pale and played out,
In a sensual hand, it is a sin, Worth scribbling about.

What is sauce for the goose, for the pander Is sauce, ye thoughtless fair!
It is better to laugh than to wonder,
And better is mirth than despair.
And though life's not all beer and skittles, Yet the sun on occasion can shine,
And, mon Dieu, he's a fool who belittles This boon of thine.

There are cakes, there are pies—ays, and ginger Shall be lost in the mouth as of old,
And a villain, with count and with whiteness,
And a hero in armor of gold,
And a maid with a face like a lily,
With a heart that is true as steel,
Make a tale worth a world of the silly Sad traits of today!

MISUNDERSTANDING.

THE WIFE'S VERSION.

What is the matter with him?
Why is he angry with me? I have done everything in my power to make him happy—everything. Of course I won't say I wouldn't have preferred to marry an attorney or solicitor or some one with a nice, steady, respectable profession, but such as he is I really like him. I thought he was a little eccentric at times, to be sure, but very nice and well bred. Then, too, he had some little money, and I hoped that when we were once married he wouldn't let his poetry keep him from getting some good position or other, and then we could get along very nicely.
He used to find me quite to his taste, too, then. When he came out to the country to see me at auntie's, he couldn't find words enough to express his admiration for the way we kept our little house, and indeed it was as tidy and as neat as a convent.
How amusing! he would say.
He would laugh too, and call me by all sorts of names he got out of the poems and novels he was always reading. I used to shock me a little, I admit. I thought rather he had been a little more respectful, but it was only when we were married and settled down in Paris that I really saw the difference in our dispositions.

I had planned such a pretty little home, nicely kept and light and clean, and he immediately began to fill all the rooms with queer old tapestries—oh, so old and faded—and with the most extraordinary furniture, really useless and quite out of style and absolutely spotted with dust. It was just my taste, but it everything. If you will believe me, he made me store away into the attic such a pretty empire clock that my sunt left me, and a number of other framed pictures that my friends at boarding school gave me. He said they were all "hideous." I am sure I can't imagine why, for his study is filled with smoky old canvases and statues that I'm ashamed to look at and ugly old bric-a-brac that is really good for nothing—old clockworks covered with verdigris and broken cups that don't match and vases that won't hold water. Right next to my hand, some new piano, too, he set up an ugly little one, with the varnish all scaling off and half the keys missing and so worn out that you can hardly hear it. Really I began to think to myself, "Why, dear me, an artist certainly must be a little crazy. He doesn't care for anything but such useless things. He seems to despise everything useful."

But it was a great deal worse when I met his friends and saw the society he moved in—people with long hair and long, ill kept beards, and so leadily dressed too. They used to smoke right before me without even "by your leave," and it made me ill to hear them talk. Their ideas were all so contrary to mine, all so high-sounding talk, you know, nothing simple, nothing natural. And such manners! You might ask them to dinner 30 times in succession, and they would never call or pay you the slightest attention or even send you a card or a bouillon at New Year's—nothing.

Some of the men were married and brought their wives with them, and you ought to have seen the kinds of people they were. Such elegant gowns just for every day, but not what you or I would ever put on of course, and so queerly worn, too, without any attention or care. And then their hair—oh, such long, low trains, and the brazen manner they had of showing off their accomplishments. Why, some of them could sing like actresses and play like professionals, and they chatted away on every subject, just like men. You don't think that is very nice really, now, do you? When women are married, they are to look after their household cares and not of other things, oughtn't they? That's what I tried to make my husband see when he felt so bad at my giving up my music.

"Music," I said, "is all very well when one is a little girl and has nothing better to do. But really I should feel perfectly ridiculous if I had to sit down to the piano every day."

Oh, I know—his great grievance against me is that I have tried to get him out of that queer set whose influence was so bad for him. He re-proaches me to this day for keeping his friends at a distance. Well, I did it, and I am glad of it. Why, they would have turned his head. Sometimes, after being with them, he would spend the whole night versing and making a row, and down the room talking to himself, as if he wasn't queer and eccentric enough without any one's making him any worse.

Oh, the whims and fancies of that man's! I've had to put up with it.
Sometimes he would burst into my room suddenly in the morning with a "Quick! Put on your hat. We're going to the woods today." And I had to leave everything, my sewing and my housework, and spend a lot of my time in cabs and railway fares when I knew very well we ought to be saving and economical, for you know 15,000 francs a year doesn't go very far when you're living in Paris and want to do something for your children.

At first he used to laugh and tried to make me laugh, but when he saw that it was my intention to live very quietly and properly he became angry at my simplicity and domestic laids. Is it my fault if I hate theaters and concerts and those artists' parties he was always wanting to drag me to, where he would have been sure to meet his former friends, a parcel of crack brained bohemians and spendthrifts.

I thought at one time he was coming to his senses. I had succeeded in making him leave his own set and had gathered about us a number of nice, sensible, respectable people who might have been able to do something for him—but no indeed.
It bored him to death. He was bored to death with his morning night. You should have seen his face and what a temper he was in at my little "at homes," though I am sure I always lighted up and was everything necessary, and when he were alone it was just the same thing over again.

And I was so thoughtful and attentive too. I would say, "Read me what you are writing now, won't you?" and he would recite long strings of poetry, verse after verse.
I don't know how long it lasted, but I pretended to be very much interested in it and used to put in a word now and then, which always seemed to irritate and annoy him.

But in a while, year, with all his rhyming, he got out only one book, and that didn't sell. I said to him, "Now, don't you see? Just by way of reasoning with him, to lead him to something better, something more remunerative, and he flew into the most violent passion, and ever since he has been so bitter and so full of quitter miserable. My friends do all they can for me. You see, my dear, he doesn't know what to do with ones he has received, and so much time on his hands has these fits of temper. If he only had some little occupation now he wouldn't be so wretched."

So I started out, and all my friends with me, to try to obtain a position for him. I moved heaven and earth.
I can't tell you how many calls I made on the friends of the secretary and of that. I even went to members of the cabinet, but of course without letting him know. I was saying it up as a surprise for him. I kept saying to myself, "Now, well see if he won't be glad this time."

At last the day came when I received his appointment in a great official envelope with five seals. I took it to his study, wild with delight, for was not our future assured now and comfort and the peace that work brings and itself contents?

Do you know what he did?
He said he would never forgive me in his whole life, and he tore the letter into a thousand pieces and rushed out, slamming the door.

Oh, these literary people, with their poor turned heads, who take life the wrong way!
What is to become of a person with a man like that? I wanted to talk it over with him, to reason with him—but he! I ought to have known.
My friends all told me he was crazy.
And what good would talking do?
We don't speak the same language.
He wouldn't understand me any more than I understand him.
And now here we are. I know he must hate me. I feel it in his eyes, and still I like him.
Really it is very hard.

—THE HUSBAND'S VERSION.

Important demands of wealth. I dreaded family connections, too, that network of far-reaching, commonplace affections, which imprison and betide one and finally suffocate him.
My wife was insistent that I had dreamed of. I used to think, "She will owe everything to me, and what a pleasure it will be to lead that silly mind to the love of the beautiful—to let her pure soul enter into all my enthusiasms and hopes—to breathe life into that statue."

For myself, she was very like a statue, with her great, calm, serious eyes, her regular Grecian profile and her well defined features, which would have been almost severe if they had not been softened by the delicacy which all youthful faces owe to their rose tinted bloom and the shadow of rippling hair. She had, too, a slight provincial accent, which was my delight, and which I used to listen to with closed eyes, as to a remembrance of a happy childhood, the least and the least of a high corner far away. And to think that now that accent has become unbearable to me!

But in those days I was hopeful. I loved her. I was happy and ready and willing to become even more so.
I was so full of ardor for my work that immediately after my marriage I began to work as hard as in the evenings I used to read to her what I had written during the day.
At first she would say "that was very nice," and I was grateful to her for even these childish words of approbation, hoping that some day she would understand what meant life itself to me.

For thing! How I must have bored her! After reading my verses to her I used to explain them, seeking in her beautiful, wide opened eyes a responsive gleam and fancying always that I had found it there.
I used to make her give me her opinion, tell me what she thought best, and I would grieve over the inanity of her replies, remembering only the few which by chance happened to be good. I wanted so much to make her my real wife, the wife of an artist—but no. She did not understand. In vain did I read to her from the greatest poets, from the most beautiful and the most tender. The golden rhythms of their lives verse fell before her with the weary dullness and chill of rain. Once I remember I was reading the "October Night," and she interrupted me to ask for something "deeper."

I tried to explain to her that there is nothing in the world deeper than poetry; that it is the very essence of life and covers over it like a robe of light, which words and thoughts rise and are transfigured. Oh, the disdainful smile of those pretty lips, the contemptuous look in her eyes! You would have thought she was listening to a madman or a child.

What did I not say! What floods of eloquence did I not pour forth! But all to no purpose. I was forever bringing up short against what she called "good, sound common sense," the never failing cant of the narrow minded and of those "whose hearts are dry as summer dust."

Nor was it poetry alone that bored her. Before we were married I had thought she cared for music. She seemed to understand what she played, drilled as it was into her by her teacher. But immediately after our marriage she closed the piano and had no more to do with it. Instead, she began to play the violin, anything sadder than the young wife's giving up all that made her young girlhood attractive! When once her hands were rested and the ended, the actress donned her costume.
This surface of little accomplishments, of pretty smiles, of passing elegance, is only in view of matrimony.
The change with her was instantaneous. I thought at first that she would get, in spite of herself, in this wonderful Paris, where the eyes and mind are refreshed as it were, unconsciously, the taste which I could not impart to her and a comprehension of art and of the beautiful. But what is to be done with a woman who never opens a book, to whom everything is distasteful, and who will not understand!

I soon saw that I must resign myself to my fate; that she was not my wife, but only an active, economic—oh, a very economical!—housekeeper—woman and nothing more. I would have borne it, as it were, unconsciously, the taste which I could
not impart to her and a comprehension
of art and of the beautiful. But
what is to be done with a woman
who never opens a book, to whom
everything is distasteful, and who
will not understand!

Little by little, quietly and in an underhand way, she succeeded in es-tranging all my friends. She never stood upon ceremony before her, but continued to talk as we used to do in the past, and she was never able to fathom the irony of the phrase fancy of our artistic exaggerations and our mad axioms and paradoxes.
It only irritated and confused her.
She would listen, as she sat at a little corner of the drawing room, without saying a word, but mentally resolving on the dismissal, each in his turn, of all those shocking men. In spite of an apparent reluctance, she was making itself felt within my walls that little draft which is so sure a sign that the door is ajar and that it will soon be time to go.

When once my friends were driven away, she replaced them by her own.
I was hemmed in on all sides by Philistines, odious people, who were absolutely nothing of art, and who looked down upon poetry as something which "doesn't pay." They used to talk in my presence of the "fashionable" writers of the day—people who turned out novels and plays by the score and purposely in a casual manner. "So-and-so makes a great deal of money."

That was all the wretched thought of, and I saw, to my sorrow, that my wife thought as they did. In that sordid atmosphere her provincial labils, her mean and petty views of life, narrowed down into an incredible greed. It seemed to me that with an income of 15,000 francs one might have lived without fear of the morrow, but she did not think so. She was always complaining, talking of economizing and retrenching and suggesting profitable investments.
Little by little, immersed as I was in this flood of distasteful detail, I felt all love and taste for my work desert me.

Sometimes she would come to my writing table and look over—oh, with such disdain!—my last few verses. "Is that all?" she would say, counting over all the hours wasted on those insignificant little bres. Ah, if I had listened to her this proud title of poet, which I struggled so many years to win, would now be dragged in the mire of the mere money making scribbling. And when I think that it was to this commune I opened up my heart and poured forth all my aspirations; when I think that this aversion she manifests, because, forsooth, I do not "make money," dates from the very beginning of our married life I blush for myself and for her.

"He doesn't make money." That explains it, her reproachful look, her love for whatever "pays," however little it may be—even to that last step of hers—her trying to obtain some kind of a government position for me.

But there I drew the lines most decidedly. I have nothing left but a firm will, which will give way to neither force nor pleading. She may talk to me forever, freeze me with her icest glance—my thought is my own and will forever be beyond her grasp.

And this is what we have come to.
Think of it. Here we are, married and condemned to live together—leagues apart, and too weary, too discouraged, to even try to draw nearer, each to each.

And this for life. Oh, horrible, most horrible!—Translated From the French of Alphonse Daudet For Short Stories.

Balsac and the Hangman.

Calling one day by appointment on a friend, Balsac found himself in the presence of a stranger, a very pale man, with a serious air and noble face. The manners, language, evident culture and intelligence of the stranger led the author to think him for some learned man, moved by the same interest and curiosity as himself. The stranger was Sanson.
Warned by M. Appert, Balsac carefully prepared a list of topics for discussion, and skillfully turning the conversation to subjects of personal interest the novelist was ultimately succeeding in gaining the headman's confidence.
In vivid colors Sanson gave him a harrowing description of the sufferings and miseries of his wretched life. Himself a royalist, the death of Louis XVI and his unfortunate consort had left the executioner with all the terrors and remorse of a criminal. Since the guillotine was invented he had known no peace, despite the expiatory mass which he had caused to be said for the king the morning after the execution. He had seen the probable only one celebrated in Paris on that day.—Gentleman's Magazine.

The Account Settled In Full.

At a salon in Paris some years ago the Sieur d'Aimerie was one of a group to whom was imparting an account of his pedigree, which he claimed was derived from the phar-mace of Egypt. Just then the late Baron de Rothschild approached the group, and one of its members called out: "Baron, come and let me make you acquainted with the Sieur d'Ai-merie. He comes from pharmonic stock, and you ought to know each other." "Yes," said the baron, bowing gravely and addressing d'Aime-rie, "I believe our families had some transactions in time past." "Yes," replied d'Aimerie, "we have a record that your people when leaving the country borrowed a considerable amount of jewelry from my people, for which I should now like to be repaid, with interest." "I remember the transaction," said Rothschild, "but the account was settled some date. Your father received a check on the Bank of the Red Sea."

The Watermelon.

Why is it that there is every year so great an outburst of melody (alleged) about the watermelon? What the watermelon that it should be regarded as a delicacy, which he cannot hold a candle to the cantaloupe either for flavor or harmlessness. The great army of watermelon poets is calculated to make and sell. As a pro-motor of joy the watermelon is two thirds a bluff, with the other third a sticky juice that pleases neither palate nor stomach. Reluctant yourself to the rear, verminists who use the watermelon as a foundation for your rhymed vapors! You give one a pain, and so does your watermelon.

Patriot O'Leary, the husband of Mrs. O'Leary, who owned the cow that kicked over the lamp that turned the city of Chicago in 1871, is dead.

Gen. James S. Wilson, who spent a year in China and critically examined the army and fortifications, says: "It is hardly to be doubted that an army of 60,000 Europeans with artillery and infantry and a preponderance of cavalry, well organized, supplied and commanded, can go anywhere in China, and if so disposed, it can overrun and dismember the empire."

The reputation of the Count of Paris, never recovered from the ill-advised alliance with the Bonapartist party in 1859. He then took the risk of having France fall into the power of a military dictator for the chance of pulling some advantage to his party out of the struggle between the Republicans and the General's partisans.

A lineal descendant of Peregrine White, the first white child born in New England, the having been born within the limits of Cape Cod, on board the Mayflower, November 20, 1630 (O. S.) living in Clinton, Mass. He is ninety years old, being the fifth generation removed from Peregrine. He still engages actively in farm work and seems to have a long lease on life yet to run.

Barney Langtry, the Democratic candidate for Secretary of State in Kansas, is the owner of a ranch of 13,000 acres in Chase county. The track stretches a length of thirteen miles on either side of Fox Creek which flows the year round and furnishes an abundance of water for 3,000 cattle which feed in the pastures. On his ranch Mr. Langtry has a park in which he is collecting deer, antelope, elk and Buffalo.

M. Francois Bazaine, the son of the late Marshal whom his countrymen designated "the traitor of Metz," obtained after his father's death a commission in the Spanish army. This he resigned some months ago in order to visit in Mexico, where his mother held considerable estates, which were seized by Jarez on the withdrawal of the French troops. Young Bazaine hoped that he might induce the present Government of the Republic to make, at all events, partial restitution of the confiscated property. It is needless to state that the poor fellow has come back in a destitute condition. In point of fact, the ex-Marchese and her family are on the brink of starvation.

The "oldest postmaster in the United States" has been turning up in all parts of this country, but the friends of Roswell Boardley, of North Lansing, Tompkins county, N. Y., claim that he still holds that honor. He was appointed a postmaster by President John Quincy Adams in 1838, and is still in office. "His commission," says the Troy Times, "signed by the President aforementioned, hangs in his library, and he has been offered a large price for it by the New York Geographical Society, but he is well-to-do and able to keep it. Mr. Boardley is in his eighty-sixth year, and has been postmaster a few months over sixty years. And as he always good health, he is likely to go on until the end of Cleveland's term, and as much longer as a kind Providence permits him to breathe the vital air."

A little American girl has just soothed the heart of the stern German Emperor in a very pretty way. Every young German man has to serve a certain time as a soldier after his education is completed, and this little girl, who lives in this country, journeyed all the way over the sea to visit a certain "dear uncle," only to find that he was off at the barracks doing his soldier duties. She was greatly disappointed and much distressed, and as she was told that no one but the Emperor could help her, with true American independence she decided to write to him. She did tell him how sorry she felt to find her dear uncle away, and saying that she had often heard of the Emperor's kindness, and was sure, when he knew all about the circumstances, he would arrange for her uncle's return. The letter reached the Emperor, and eventually arrived at the War Office, with instructions attached, Eight days after, the "dear uncle" was informed that he might either postpone his military duties entirely until next year, or receive permission to spend some days in his native village, the quiet appeal of the trusting little niece having quite won the monarch's heart.

Formal announcement is made of a unique and notable gathering, the first of the kind ever held in America. A national convocation of mothers. The convocation will be held in this city under the auspices of the Chicago Kindergarten College, beginning Sept. 25 and ending Sept. 27.

A Passport.

Not long since, three little children a boy of ten years, with his two little sisters, one seven and the other four, living in Klum, in Eastern Prussia, wished to go to Sedalla in the State of Missouri, to join their parents who were already settled in America. None of their relatives were situated as to be able to accompany them, and hence they were under the necessity of taking their journey alone. An aunt in Berlin furnished each of the young travelers with a little book, on the first page of which she wrote the name, age, birth-place and destination of the bearer; writing below in large letters, in German, English and French a single sentence taken from that book. And she told them whenever they found themselves in any trouble or difficulty, to just stand still and open those little books and hold them up before them.

The children started from their German home, travelled until they reached the coast, embarked on the steamer, crossed the great Atlantic, landed in America, travelled by rail more than a thousand miles westward into the heart of Missouri, showing their little passports when needed, to all with whom they came in contact; and in no case did they fail to obtain every kindness, tenderness and protection which could be given, every hand being stretched forth in helpfulness to the little ones who were thus cast upon the kindness of passing strangers whom they had never seen before and would never see again, but through whose kind assistance they safely reached the far-off home of their grateful and rejoicing parents.

What little book was this, which proved to them such a precious passport? Was it a volume of the decrees and laws of an Alexander, a Caesar, or a Charlemagne? Was it a ukase of the Russian autocrat, or a decree of the emperor of Germany, which made for them a way over land and sea? No! It was none of these. It was a copy of that same New Testament which has been so wonderfully preserved through eighteen hundred years. And what was the sentence, German, English and French, which commanded the attention, the respect, and the service of strangers, of whatever nationality? Was it a passage from an Eastern Veda? A maxim of Confucius? An utterance of Buddha? A command of some high and mighty potentate? A commendation from some vast and influential brotherhood? No! It was none of these. The sentence which opened their way and proved to them more effective than the mandate of a monarch, or the safe conduct of an emperor, was this: "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto Me," saith Jesus Christ.—Ex.

Using an Incubator.

This is the time to begin with an incubator. Which is the better, the hen or the incubator, for hatching? Such is the usual inquiry. It may be settled in reply that they do not conflict in any respect, and are in no manner connected. The incubator can be made to do service at any time, while the hen will not hatch a brood until she is so inclined. Then, again, hens do not all become broody at once, hence the chicks are of all ages and sizes until they reach the market, and as the hens may not begin to incubate before spring, no chicks may be hatched for the early market at all. With the incubator the case is different. It can be operated when no other work is pressing, and the chicks will bring higher prices because they can be hatched to reach the market when the demand is greatest. Procure the small size incubator, experiment and learn before beginning for the season. Beginners should invest but little the first year. One must learn to manage the chicks after they are hatched, and there is much to learn that can only be gained by practice and experience.—Mirror and Farmer.

THE CORN CROP.

Heavy Shortage Reported From All Over the West.

The New York World publishes a detailed statement from hundreds of Western towns, showing a heavy shortage in the corn crop. The World says: "The biggest crop raised by a single county is Indian corn, and the United States is the country that raises it. In a good year the United States produces two billion bushels of this staple, and has produced more. At the average market prices these two billion bushels are worth $1,000,000,000, or about ten times as much as the gold production of the whole world for a year. A severe drought has greatly reduced the yield."

"The reports cover the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota."

"These twelve States include the great corn belt of the United States, and in an average year produce 75 per cent. of the corn crop. The Government report makes the yield this year 1,000,000,000 bushels, but most all of the corn authorities say this is too low."

"These reports indicate about two-thirds of an average crop, or in the neighborhood of 1,300,000,000. The greatest reduction has been in the States west of the Mississippi, and their loss has been heavy. Kansas, which raised more than 150,000,000 in a good year, reports only 42,000,000 bushels; but the States east of the Mississippi, where rain is a more certain quantity, pull up the average."

A Louisville girl discovered a novel panacea for a broken heart, but common humanity demands should be given widespread circulation at once for the benefit of a suffering world. The story was overheard in that queer but popular public confessional, a street-car. The clever creature said to the other girl: "Oh, Louise, I felt perfectly dreadful all day yesterday. Harry and I have fallen out, and we are both so obstinate that we never will make up—never! My life is a perfect wreck. I cried until I couldn't cry any more, and was just desperate to know what to do with myself, when suddenly I heard a hand-organ out on the street—the first of the season. I rushed out and brought the man into the parlor—monkey and all—and kept him all afternoon—the antics of that monkey nearly killed me. Of course, it nearly ruined me financially, but, goodness! when one has a broken heart, something has to be done."—Louisville Times.

The Apostles had no creed, and would have been surprised enough to find that a creed had been compiled in their name. It is doubtful if Paul and Peter could have agreed about a creed if they had undertaken to write one. They each preached Christianity as they understood it.—Christian Register.

Samuel O. Nunn Killed.

Marion, Ky., Sept. 19.—The Hon. Samuel O. Nunn was to-day shot and killed by J. E. Lloyd, the Town Marshal of this place. Mr. Nunn has been drunk here for the last week, and last Saturday night was disorderly and Lloyd arrested him, and Nunn then warned Lloyd that there would be a hereafter, and on Monday he went after Lloyd, cursed him and challenged him for a duel, but Lloyd paid no attention to it. To-day Lloyd was in his office, and he says Nunn came in and ran upon him with drawn knife; that to keep Nunn from killing him he fired, shooting Nunn four times, once in the head and three times in the body. Nunn died instantly.

Mr. Nunn has been dissipating a great deal for the last six months, and his wife left him, and this seemed to be on his mind at all times. He was a member of the Legislature from this and Livingston counties in 1885-6, and was Deputy Warden of Eadsville penitentiary for two years. He at one time was quite popular in this county, and if he had left whiskey alone would certainly have made his mark. He was a ready handshaker, and never forgot names and faces. Nunn was a fearless man, having killed Corbet and Dye and shot Montgomery. Lloyd gave himself up to the County Judge at once and will have a hearing to-morrow.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Cascoe, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other harmful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kitchener, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. Amner, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

TRIMBLE BROS.

WHOLESALE & GROCERS

MT. STERLING, KY.

Steadily in its approach. It is too late. That is true of Lincoln. A little sooner, a little later, and the back. These excite no suspicion. Suddenly acute symptoms supervene, and death ensues. It is like the fatal spring of the wolf. Let us reason together a little.

1. On the slightest symptom of what we call "the back," it is guaranteed to satisfy or money returned. So you only pay for benefit actually received.

2. If you should be mistaken in fearing his disease, it will do no harm and has all its state cleared your blood, you renewed life as it were, cleared your liver, you renewed your stomach, invigorated your nerves and thus, turned you against the disease you fear. "Save some a little today."

Today we see registration day. Let every Democrat register and see that his neighbors do likewise.

W. S. Hockaday said to George F. Green his stock of groceries. The business will be continued at the same stand.

Ex-Mayor George W. Gardner, of Cleveland, who was a member of Dr. Cook's Greenland expedition, made a serious charge against its promoter, alleging that the expedition was run only for profit.

The gold reserve in the National Treasury continues to increase, being now $58,005,027, against $52,000,000 July 28, when it was down to the lowest point.

The San Salvador extradition cases have been decided by Judge Morrow, of San Francisco, who holds that Gen. Ezeta, Balonza and Bassemonts commit only political offenses. Col. Cleuteguer, however, can be held, he having committed murder.

Edwin, youngest son of Jay, said to be chip of the old block, threw into the net this business in New York City. One machine is said to be able to turn out 25,000,000 matches per day. The Diamond Match Company will find a formidable rival in the Gould Company. Edwin is out for the stuff.

John A. Schweitzer, a journeyman electrician, was killed Friday at Louisville by touching an electric light wire in a refrigerator box at Swift's grocery. The current had not been cut off, and he received the full force of about 1,100 volts. The coroner's jury charged negligence on the part of the Electric Light Company.

Examination of the tariff law at the Treasury Department discloses the fact that it contains no provisions whatever for a duty upon imported fruits preserved in brandy or other spirits. The omission was not discovered until an application was received from a large importer of such goods for information as to their classification under the present tariff law.

B. P. Hutchinson, "Old Hutch," has again made his appearance as an active factor in the Chicago market. This time it is the cigar market which the venerable speculator has tackled, and he is apparently on the "bear side." Down in Pacific Avenue, opposite the Board of Trade, where once, at the wave of his hand, the grain prices of the world danced up and down, Mr. Hutchinson has opened a cigar store. On the window appears the legend: "Old Hutch's cigar store. Good cigars 1 cent apiece. Better 2 for 5. Cigarettes 4 cents per package."

The First New Hoghead.

The first new hoghead last year was also grown in Hart county and was sold the third week in September. It only brought $5.20. —Farmers Home Journal.

HORSE AND TRACK.

Bred for all the race horse qualities. The 2:04 pacing list is steadily increasing. R. D. Wilkes has one hundred representatives in the 2:30 list. Directly, by Direct, has lowered the two-year-old record to 2:07.

Onward 2:25, has already had ten additions to his 2:30 list this year. There are seven horses with records below 2:10 owned in Buffalo, N. Y.

B. F. Herriot was behind the money at Tiffin, O., last week with the jockey Red.

The two-year-old colt, Carbonate, 2:09, by Superior, is owned by A. V. Hunter, Leaville, Col.

Fifty-nine trotters and twenty-one pacers won $1,000 or over in the Grand Circuit this year.

Mary Best and Nellie A. lead the Grand Circuit winners this year. Each have $11,000 to their credit.

Fantasy, 2:06, is surely after the four-year-old record held by Directum, 2:05, and it looks as though she would get it.

Daily Wilkes, 2:14, is at home. She is out of condition and will not likely start again until the meeting at Lexington.

It is reported that A. H. Moore, proprietor of Cloverfield Farm, Colmer, Pa., has purchased Atlanta, dam of Alka, 2:04, and Josephine Young, dam of Joe Patchen, 2:04.

White beauty may not add so much to the market value of a horse as some other qualities. It is very desirable attribute, and one that should never be lost sight of by the breeder.

The race between Joe Patchen and Robert J., which has been arranged to take place at Davenport, Ill., September 27, will be for a purse of $4,500, of which the winner will receive two-thirds.

C. W. Williams is having a good meeting at Galesburg, Ill. Last Wednesday and Thursday the attendance was about 20,000 each day. The track is fast and two records were made—Alka in 2:03, Directly (2) in 2:07.

Lexington meeting in October promises to be one of the best ever held by the Association. All the fast ones will be there, and the trotting and pacing races will be as good as ever have been seen on any track.

Strader's winning heat in 2:09, at Indianapolis last week makes him not only the fastest at present, but the fastest trotter bred or owned in Ohio. He is a bay horse, eight years old, by Squire Taggart, son of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, dam Lucy H. by Napoleon, son of Strader's Cassius M. Clay, Jr.

The free-for-all pacing purse offered by the Kentucky Breeder's Association, should furnish one of the greatest races of the year. Robert J. will not be entered, but John R. Gentry, 2:03, and Joe Patchen, 2:04, should give the spectators as great a contest as has ever been witnessed.

C. J. Hamlin says that last week's free-for-all at Terre Haute has firmly convinced him that trotting breed pacers are superior to the pacing breed ones as race horses. John R. Gentry's defeat over Hal Braden settled that question in his mind. He says the trotting-breed pacers are smoother-gated and are not so loosely made.

Alka is now the undisputed queen of the trotting turf. At Galesburg, Ill., on the 19th inst., she started to beat 2:04 and made the distance in 2:03, thus placing to her credit the fastest mile ever scored by any trotter. Nancy Hanks will now take her place in trotting horse history with Maud S., Goldsmith Maid and the other dethroned champions.

In the principal corn states much of the crop has been cut and the greater portion is now safe from frost. Pennsylvania, Indiana, and Missouri report that late corn has improved; in Wisconsin and New Jersey it is turning out better than was expected. Arkansas reports a good corn crop. In Illinois late corn is maturing rapidly, and in Indiana it is maturing slowly. —Farmers Home Journal.

Big Mules.

Joe Bridges, of Farmington, Graves county, Ky., raised and sold two years ago a span of mules which weighed even 2,000 pounds, and has a pair now on hand fully as heavy and just as good. —Farmers Home Journal.

STOCK AND CROP.

Ed Prewitt bought of Mr. Jack Wilson 40 head of feeders at $3.55. Average 1200 pounds.

Mr. Thos. H. Grubbs sold the "top" of his bunch of cattle for 44 cents, and in a few days later sold the culs for 44 cents. It would have been well for Mr. Grubbs to have had all culs.

James M. Bigstaff and B. F. Cockrell received last week 74 out of 150 cattle bought for feeders in Claiborne county, Tennessee. The balance of the shipment will be in about the first of October. These cattle cost the gentlemen 34 cents here, and averaged 1150 pounds.

The late set tobacco has grown almost beyond recognition within the last few days. The early planting is housed. Pres Barnes sold his crop of tobacco to James Richard, of Owingville, at 7 cents per pound; also 30 acres of corn in the field at $1.65 per barrel. Some have sown wheat and rye for early grazing, which is coming up nicely since the rain. The acreage of wheat that will be sown this fall promises to be small.—Sharpsburg World.

The sale of Mr. J. D. Sutton, at his place on the Leestown place, three miles of this city, took place Thursday. Twenty Jersey cows brought an average of $57 per head, Mrs. John Sherman buying five at prices ranging from $53 to $67 per head. A Jersey bull sold for $24. The furniture and household goods brought good prices, leather beds selling at 36 cents per pound. The land included two tracts, one of forty-five and the other of six acres. The first was bid to $6,000 and the other to $6,700 and both withdrawn. Messrs. Jerry E. Delph & Sons have sold for Mr. W. D. Gay his farm on the Parker's Mill place about five miles from the city, at $80 per acre, to Mr. Orlando Smith, of this county. This is quite good land.—Lexington Gazette.

BEAUTY AND LIARS.

It all Depend On The Sex, According to Sam Jones. With No Other Requisites.

The Courier Journal gives the following in a special from Louisville, Tenn.

An amusing incident occurred at the close of Sam Jones' sermon at Pulaski the other day. Stepping down from the pulpit, folding his hands across his breast and looking solemnly over the audience, the great revivalist said:

"I want all the women in this crowd who have not spoken a harsh word or harbored an unkind thought toward their husbands for a month past to stand up."

One old woman, apparently on the shady side of sixty, stood up.

"Come forward and give me your hand," said the preacher.

The woman did so, whereupon Jones said:

"Now turn around and let this audience see the best looking woman in this country."

After taking her seat the revivalist addressed the men.

"Now, I want all the men in this crowd who have not spoken a harsh word or harbored an unkind thought toward their wives for a month past to stand up."

Twenty-seven great, big, strapping fellows hopped up out of the audience with all the alacrity of champagne corks.

"Come forward and give me your hands, my dear boys," Jones gave each one a vigorous shake, after which he arranged all of them side by side in front of the pulpit and facing the audience. He looked them over carefully and solemnly, and then turning around to the audience he said:

"I want you all to take a good look at the twenty-seven biggest liars in the State of Tennessee."

Merit Wins.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and never handled remedies that sell as well or that give such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merit.

A BALD EAGLE.

Attempts to Steal a Child in West Virginia.

Huntington, W. Va., Sept. 21.—The 5-year-old son of Mrs. Mary Stewart, of Spruce Creek, in Boone County, had a thrilling experience with a large bald eagle. The bird had knocked the boy senseless and was fastening its talons in the child's clothing preparatory to carrying him away and would have done so perhaps, had it not been for the timely arrival of the mother, who frightened the bird away with a club.

SALE OF Cattle and Land.

On Wednesday, October 17th,

I will at my residence on the Mt. Sterling and Owingville Turnpike Road, about seven miles east of Mt. Sterling, sell at public auction my entire herd of Short Horn cattle, numbering about one hundred head, and consisting of such families as Barringtons, Kirklingtons, Young Marys and Rose of Sharons. There are several young bulls and about 25 steers, mostly two years old, in the herd. Pedigrees will be furnished to any purchaser desiring. Sale will begin at 10 o'clock a. m. and will be made on a credit till March 1, 1895, purchaser to give obligation with security, bearing interest at six per cent from date.

Also, at same time and place, I will sell 90 acres of land, known as the Peggy Young farm, situated on Flat Creek on the Mt. Sterling and Owingville Turnpike Road, about six miles east of Mt. Sterling. There is a good dwelling, large, excellent tobacco barn, and a good tenant house on the land, and it is well watered. ## PUBLIC SALE

Horse Stock, Cattle, &c.,

Thursday, October 4, '94.

Having determined to make a change in my business, I have concluded to sell all my horses at public sale without reserve. The horse stock consists of about 50 head of trotters, harness and saddlers. Brood mares by such sires as Bourbon Wilkes, Princes, Mambrino Star, Clermont and Sherman's Hambletonian. Some nice colts and fillies by Algeria Wilkes, 3 and 4 year old geldings and fillies; some a good prospect for trotters and race horses as any in the lot. The saddlers are headed by that prince of saddle stallions, King William 2, a sire of saddle horses that always sell well.

Mr. J. H. Croxton will also close out his entire stock of horses at the same time and place, which includes some extra nice and well bred stock. I will also sell 20 head of yearling cattle, extra good; 1 three-year-old Polled Angus bull; some sheep and hogs; 6 two-year-old mules; milch cows; the Jack, Big Jeff, one of the best breeders in the country; also 1 young jack two years old; from 25 to 30 acres of corn in the field.

I will also sell from 150 to 200 acres of the best land in the State, with improvements.

The farm is situated on the Colby place, 3 miles from Winchester, in one of the best of neighborhoods. The farm will show for itself, and if you want to buy the best, come and see. It will take pleasure in showing it.

The sale will take place on the premises 3 miles from Winchester, on the Colby place, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m. Terms on day of sale.

Catalogue of stock will be sent on application. Address,
